governing biological weapons apply to non state actors professor ronald sievert from the university of texas school of law advocates for rewriting the foreign intelligence surveillance act and christopher donesa former chief counsel for the house permanent select committee on intelligence provides insight into the hotly debated section 215 of the usa patriot act this issue also contains two notes by mason students stacy allen analyzes a key case shaping the military s handling of sexual assault and melissa burgess comments on laws preventing the reimportation of american military firearms seminar paper from the year 2015 in the subject law european and international law intellectual properties grade 1 3 university of mannheim language english abstract this paper focuses on mass surveillance and its legality under the national laws of a few countries and international law as a whole many among us frequently hear the term mass surveillance these days and connect it with government monitoring us through the internet and other media keeping a note on who we are what we do any signs within us that could be contrary to the national security and so on after all if you are a good law abiding citizen then what do you have to fear about however what about the privacy of an individual as a law abiding citizen living in a liberal democracy shouldn t one have the right to indulge freely in legal activities without any fear or backlash from the authority or is it that as long as you do what you re told there is nothing to fear this paper shall analyze these questions and some more where we look into these issues especially from an international and legal perspective by reading this paper the reader has an opportunity to understand surveillance and its background and get a thorough understanding of arguments put forward by both the supporters of the surveillance laws i e the government and those who are against it this paper looks at how mass surveillance is defined under laws of various countries since there is no specific international law that deals with it at the end the paper presents plausible international laws and regulations that can be viewed to assess mass surveillance according to the current laws in place the smart grid is a convenient term to describe the modernization of electric natural gas and water grid infrastructures the term encapsulates the convergence of remote monitoring and control technologies with communications technologies renewables generation and analytics capabilities so that previously non communicative infrastructures like electricity grids can provide time sensitive status updates and deliver situational awareness while initially and mostly focused on electricity many of the same technologies particularly in information and communications technologies or ict apply to natural gas and water grids this book addresses privacy in all three of these consumables but electricity occupies a unique place by virtue of the fact that we can produce it as well as consume it in addition existing technologies make it easier to get many more measurements about electricity than gas or water these two unique qualities about electricity have very interesting ramifications for privacy and therefore this book will refer to electricity and electricity use cases because that provides the best framework for discussion of this important topic parliamentary joint committee on intelligence and security this open access book explores the legal aspects of cybersecurity in poland the authors are not limited to the framework created by the ncsa national cybersecurity system act this act was the first attempt to create a legal regulation of cybersecurity and in addition has implemented the provisions of the nis directive but may discuss a number of other issues the book presents international and eu regulations in the field of cybersecurity and issues pertinent to combating cybercrime and cyberterrorism moreover regulations concerning cybercrime in a few select european countries are presented in addition to the problem of collision of state actions in ensuring cybersecurity and human rights the advantages of the book include a comprehensive and synthetic approach to the issues related to the cybersecurity system of the republic of poland a research perspective that takes as the basic level of analysis issues related to the security of the state and citizens and the analysis of additional issues related to cybersecurity such as cybercrime cyberterrorism and the problem of collision between states ensuring security cybernetics and human rights the book targets a wide range of readers especially scientists and researchers members of legislative bodies practitioners especially judges prosecutors lawyers law enforcement officials experts in the field of it security and officials of public authorities most authors are scholars and researchers at the war studies university in warsaw some of them work at the academic centre for cybersecurity policy a thinktank created by the ministry of national defence of the republic of poland this volume presents analyses of data protection systems and of 26 jurisdictions with data protection legislation in africa as well as additional selected countries without comprehensive data protection laws in addition it covers all sub regional and regional data privacy policies in africa apart from analysing data protection law the book focuses on the socio economic contexts political settings and legal culture in which such laws developed and operate it bases its analyses on the african legal culture and comparative international data privacy law in africa protection of personal data the central preoccupation of data privacy laws is on the policy agenda the recently adopted african union cyber security and data protection convention 2014 which is the first and currently the only single treaty across the globe to address data protection outside europe serves as an illustration of such interest in addition there are data protection frameworks at sub regional levels for west africa east africa and southern africa similarly laws on protection of personal data are increasingly being adopted at national plane yet despite these data privacy law reforms there is very little literature about data privacy law in africa and its recent developments this book fills that gap provides a fresh perspective on asean s role for regional security in southeast asia national security law and counterterrorism law supplement parliamentary joint committee on intelligence and security the new edition of freedom of information law provides the user with a clear and comprehensive analysis of the freedom of information act 2014 referring to decisions of the information commissioner and of the courts as well as to overseas foi decisions it also covers the separate legislative regime for access to environmental information new to this edition deals with the freedom of information act 2014 which replaces the freedom of information acts 1997 2003 features numerous new decisions of the information commissioner new high court and supreme court decisions on foi appeals are considered including the governors and guardians rotunda hospital v information commissioner 2011 iesc 26 july 19 2011 key features an easy to understand reference that provides you with invaluable analysis and interpretation a systematic and thorough explanation of the freedom of information act 2014 up to date and including all important decisions of the information commissioner and case law each exemption provision is the subject of a full chapter the
